Dates of Fellowship: 02. Feb – 30 Apr.2015

Detailed description on Teaching received:

- Participation in morning round and council, where are discussed the most difficult cases (knowledge of local language is mandatory)
- Attendance of operation theatre (as the most part of operations are laparoscopic, it's also valuable, watching them on display)
- Reading professional literature (on demand)

Goals accomplished :

- Increased professional skills by understanding the difference in surgical technique and discussion of its peculiarities.
- Study process using access to modern scientific literature
- Study of possibility for future research projects

Achievement in clinical practice:

- Study of the local algorithm of diagnostics and treatment programs
 - Medication scheme
 - perioperative care for patients
 - additional skills in surgical technique

Presentations eg. at seminar or meetings:

Preparation for future presentation

Research performed and outcome:

- In order to perform research, the project proposal should be submitted by local University and home statement.
- The idea was generated. After finishing the literature update review, there can be possible continuation of discussion with colleagues.

Publications:

There should be prepared common publication during future research work.

Problems encountered with a critical evaluation of the fellowship experience as a whole:

The only problem was the unexpected actions of local University. They have started to charge for guest doctors' attendance rather a high amount of money.

Future plan on returning to home:

- implication in routine practice knowledge and skills, gained during fellowship/
- Continuation of work on the project proposal for future collaborative study in case of its submission by host University
- Writing of review article on the topic of future investigation

Overall evaluation and comment of the fellowship:

Colleagues are very intelligent and skilled. In spite of their very intensive daily working process, they find time to discuss interesting topics with you. Due to specificity of the clinic (different departments) it's rather possible to stay there along with local residents.

Of course, it's valuable to contact mentor in advance, in order they can plan their time-table and you won't come at the same time with other guest-doctors.

In order to be familiar with staff and treatment process, it's better to know local language, because all the medical documentation is written on it.

After the working day, due to a personal wish, it's possible to study in the local library, which presents a high range of literature, both printed and free on-line journal access.

I was really glad to obtain such an opportunity, due to ESGO/ENYGO fellowship program, not only increase my professional skills, but also study there.
