Motivational Statement

I am a gynaecological surgeon, MD, PhD, practising in Paris - France, at the Georges Pompidou European Hospital, in a department of gynecological surgery accredited by the ESGO for the surgical training of the fellows that we regularly welcome.

My clinical activity concerns the surgical management of gynaecological cancers with a particular interest in minimally invasive and robotic surgery, but also in the management of peritoneal carcinomatosis of ovarian origin and translational research on this theme.

I am also an active member of the FRANCOGYN group (French group of research in oncological surgery and gynecology) and of the SFOG Campus which gathers the young members of the French Society of Gynecological Oncology (SFOG), with the ambition to develop a network of practitioners from different disciplines involved in the care of gynaecological cancer patients, and to boost formation, collaboration, knowledge sharing, clinical and translational research.

I would like to bring this ambition and the dynamism of France on the European scene through ENYGO, to be enriched by the meetings with my European counterparts, to participate in the reinforcement of the interactions between the different actors of patient care and to share in return this experience with my French partners.
