Motivational Statement (250 words)

My name is Edi, I am a young surgeon from Romania and I would like to express my interest in applying for the position of Romania's National Representative at ENYGO.

I am hardworking and compassionate, but more than anything I am utterly committed to a career in cancer care. I understand that this is a career with many demands, both emotional and physical, but I know that I possess the determination and stamina to withstand these difficulties and becoming a useful member of our European and national community. The rewarding experiences I have had in my clinical work, my research and my volunteer work have prepared me for the new challenges and responsibilities that lie ahead.

I have decided to apply for this position because this opportunity will be an enriching experience, both professionally and personally, an experience from which I, my colleagues, and my country could benefit. Moreover, I wish to get involved in creating a young medical community across Europe, join forces with other ENYGO colleagues in creating and building a better tomorrow for surgical education and collaboration.

I do not make big promises, but I am not afraid to tell you that I get involved in a project with all my heart and all my skills. I hope that we will improve gynaecological oncology training in Romania by promoting, improving, and contributing to ENYGO events.
